No Problem In many typefaces, there are no kern pairs for the number characters, and these characters occupy equal widths – a narrow number like a 1 uses the same amount of space as a 9 or 0. Printing Non-consecutive Pages You can print non-consecutive pages and page ranges by typing in the page numbers in the Range field of the Print dialog box. Note that if you drag just one image or text file on top of your InDesign document and you let go of the mouse button while the cursor is over an empty frame, that file will be placed into the frame.
