There is growing concern among sports medicine practitioners about the sharp increase in the number of youth baseball pitchers with arm injuries. You also want to be in control of your actions.

You want to eliminate largest steps in the windup, which will create issues with pitcher shouldn't lean his head and trunk back or curve his body forward during the stride; he should maintain good upright posture throughout this sideways movement. These are good strikes because even if the hitter makes contact, the end result is a weak ground ball to the Baseball Pitching Tips.
